

ARNOLD IN AMERICA.

The Distinguished English Poet and Journalist in New York.

HE IS PROMPTLY INTERVIEWED.

What He Has to Say of Occultism and Several of Its Prophets.

HIS WHITECHAPEL MURDER THEORIES

SPECIAL TELEGRAM TO THE DISPATCH.

NEW YORK, Oct. 22.—Sir Edwin Arnold, the poet and journalist, arrived from England to-day in the City of New York after a stormy passage. He has come to this country to give readings from his own works. He is a rather short man with broad shoulders. Although his hair is silver gray and his beard slightly grizzled, he does not look his 59 years—he was born on June 10, 1832. His eyes are blue and his nose somewhat of the Wellington pattern.

SIR EDWIN ARNOLD'S CREED.

"I believe with St. Paul, that the things which are seen are temporal, and the things which are unseen are eternal. Half of the globe is composed of oxygen, which cannot be seen. I consider the study of the invisible to be as legitimate as the study of the visible, and feel convinced of their infinite possibilities on the lines of that study."

Sir Edwin added that, when asked what books on occultism were best to read, he recommended the "Life of Christ," "Song Celestial (Bhagavad-Gita)," and "Indian Song of Songs (Gita-Govinda)," as the most accessible, if not the best, gemstones of theosophy to be found.

When Lawrence Olcott, whom he had known, was spoken of, he said he believed Thomas L. Harris, the California Hierophant, who is credited with robbing Olcott right and left, to be misguided—he pronounced this word "misguided" as "misguided." "When a lady began abusing Harris to me, the other day," he continued, "I said: 'Be careful what you say of Oliphant and Harris. I consider the latter the more reasonable.'"

HIS OPINION OF THE WORLD'S FAIR.

Asked what he thought in England of the World's Fair, he said: "Oh, we expect you will get up something very wonderful, but we marvel why you put it a thousand miles from the seashore. We think it ought to be in New York."

When, by some association of ideas, the Whitechapel murders were spoken of, Sir Edwin said the key to them could be found in Zola's "La Bete Humaine," which chronicles a similar crime committed by a man in whom the wild beast which is in human nature predominates. Sir Edwin, however, does not consider all the murders to be the work of a single assassin.

On being asked what he thought of the Japanese who had adopted all the latest discoveries and inventions of science. At Tokio one has found him all the conveniences of civilized life that he would have in London or New York—telephones, electric light, etc. The Japanese make but small distinctions between English and Americans. Their word for "American" is "Heikoku," and for "English" "Eikoku"—the last letter is not pronounced.

Sir Edwin would not talk politics. He is a Conservative, but his brother and his American brother-in-law, who is one of the best-known names in the House of Commons, are both members of Parliament.

SEASONS OF GREATNESS IN MAN.

Lovell, Sir Edwin said, was the best judge of literature he ever knew—he was a most gifted critic. Our great man he thought to be Emerson. Rudyard Kipling he admired greatly for his accurate portraits of Indian life and for his style—the "individuality of the intellect."

Speaking of journalism, Sir Edwin said he thought every branch of it equally honorable. He had been everything himself, from a journalist to his present place, which is chief editorial writer on the London Daily Telegraph.

Sir Edwin's first reading will be given at the Carnegie Music Hall, on the evening of November 4. The occasion will be somewhat social, and of the nature of a concert. About 350 persons, conspicuous for one thing or another, will be on the stage, and Dr. Channing M. Depew will introduce the speaker to an audience of 10,000.

Sir Edwin will give readings in all the college towns and principal cities of this country this side of the Rocky mountains, and he may go to the Pacific coast. He has been in this country before, but has never given readings except to small audiences in Japan, where he has lived the last two years. He thinks himself the only man who can read his poetry. His selections will be connected episodes from the "Light of Asia," such as the "Great Renunciation" and the "Attainment of Perfect Knowledge."

THE HEATHEN OF AMERICA.

The American Missionary Association Hear Indian and Chinese Reports.

CLEVELAND, Oct. 22.—At the opening of the session of the American Missionary Association this morning, the report on Chinese work was presented by Rev. H. M. Tenny Oberlin. It was stated on the report that the church's work among the Chinese in America is on the ebullient side. The report was adopted without discussion, and the "Indian work" was taken up. The report referred to the progress of the work in Alaska, but dealt chiefly with the condition of the Sioux among whom the late rebellion existed.

Dr. Warner presented the following resolution which was adopted: "In view of the probability of a near future of Government appropriations to the schools maintained by religious societies among the Indians, voted, that a committee of five be appointed to co-operate, and advise with the Association in raising funds for this important work," in order that it may be maintained and carried on in the wisest way without abatement, and, if possible, with enlarged efficiency.

NOT AGREED ON SUNDAY CLOSING.

Resolutions Introduced For and Against at the Universalist Convention.

WORCESTER, MASS., Oct. 22.—The session of the United States Universalist Convention continued to-day. Rev. A. A. Miner, of Boston, introduced a resolution protesting against the opening of the World's Fair on Sundays and advocating the guarding of the public schools against the Roman Catholic hierarchy, which, he said, is continually proclaiming its purpose to destroy the free public sectarian schools.

Rev. Mr. Shinn, of Kansas, submitted a resolution concerning capital punishment. Rev. F. A. Winkelman, of Illinois, favored the opening of the World's Fair on Sunday, in a resolution, on the ground that the working people will be benefited.

Miners Demand an Advance.

BRAZIL, IND., Oct. 22.—The miners of block coal in this district met in mass convention in the Opera House in this city to-day and passed a resolution demanding 10 cents an advance for mining.

DEATHS HERE AND ELSEWHERE.

Dr. Seymour Bullock.

Dr. Seymour Bullock, Jr., news of whose death by accident comes from Mobile, Ala., was a native of the town of Prospect, Oneida county, N. Y., where his father, Rev. Seymour Bullock, Sr., still lives. In 1863, when only 17 years old, young Bullock enlisted in the Twenty-fourth regiment, New York Volunteer Cavalry. He was promoted to Quartermaster Sergeant, and was severely wounded at the battle of Dinwiddie Court House and was mustered out June 18, 1865. After qualifying himself for the practice of medicine he removed to Mobile, where he married a wealthy lady. He organized and was the first commander of Glenwood Post of the Grand Army of the Republic, and at his death was commander of the Grand Army department of Alabama. He was commander, also, of the Blue and Gray Veterans' Union of Mobile. For a time he conducted a weekly newspaper styled the Gulf City Sentinel. A collection of his poems entitled "Songs of Summer" has passed into a third edition. He died of a gunshot wound accidentally received at the hands of his friend and former fellow soldier, Thomas P. Brewer.

Frederick Kinsky.

Frederick Kinsky, the eccentric process server, who asserted himself to be a Polish count, and who had been in inmate of Mount Sinai Hospital, N. Y., several weeks, died Wednesday at the institution from Bright's disease of the kidneys. Kinsky was 51 years old, and was highly educated, having been graduated from the University of Heidelberg in 1852. He was fluent in speaking seven languages perfectly. He came to New York from Poland about 20 years ago, and was engaged in various occupations until the war broke out, when he joined the army and served until Appomattoch. He then returned to New York and secured employment as a lawyer's clerk. He was extremely successful as a server of papers. On one occasion he succeeded in serving papers upon Count de Lesseps in a $50,000 suit of the Panama Canal company in London. He was also an accomplished friend. All others had failed in the attempt.

General Joseph H. Brown.

Brevet Brigadier General Joseph Brown, U. S. A., died at Albany, N. Y., Wednesday. He entered the army as surgeon in 1849, and served through the Rebellion with the Army of the Potomac and the Army of the Shenandoah. He received his brevet for his eminent services during the cholera epidemic at Governor's Island, New York, in 1865. He was in command from 1872 to the date of his retirement in 1880 he was President of the Medical Examining Board in New York.

John H. Lick.

John H. Lick, only son of James Lick, the California millionaire who gave the great Lick Observatory to the State of California, died at Albany, N. Y., Wednesday. He was 72 years old, and had been in the city of Albany for some time. He was a member of the Albany bar, and was a prominent lawyer. He was also a member of the Albany bar, and was a prominent lawyer. He was also a member of the Albany bar, and was a prominent lawyer.

Consul Gildroy Wells Griffin.

Gildroy Wells Griffin, United States Consul in Sydney, New South Wales, died at Louisville last night of Bright's disease. He had been sick about three weeks. He was born in Louisville in 1841, educated at the University of Louisville, and came to the bar in 1861. He was appointed Consul in Sydney in 1871. He was a member of the Louisville bar, and was a prominent lawyer. He was also a member of the Louisville bar, and was a prominent lawyer.

Obituary Notes.

Dr. Doyle Glasville, the leader of the British North African expedition, is dead at Matabeland, from exhaustion.

Ralph Conkling.

Ralph Conkling, the oldest man in Somerset county, Pa., died Tuesday, in his 96th year. He never worked a day in his life.

George Westcroft.

George Westcroft, a prominent lumberman of Williamsport, died Tuesday in his 73rd year. He was very wealthy, owning the largest mills in the State.

John G. Borden.

John G. Borden, the inventor of condensed milk, died Wednesday in Florida, whether he had gone to benefit his health. He owned large milk refineries in Ulster and Putnam counties, N. Y.

George Rain.

George Rain, one of the most prominent and well-known millers of the United States, prominently identified for many years in the politics of Missouri, and until quite recently Chairman of the St. Louis Central Republican Committee, died in St. Louis yesterday morning.

A BLOODY CONFLICT IMMINENT.

Two Parties of Italian Workmen, One for Working, the Other for Striking.

CONCORD, N. H., Oct. 22.—Serious trouble is looked for among the Italian laborers on the State work here. Fifty of them struck Tuesday against the extortionate charges of their Italian boss for food. Twenty-seven of them were won over by the bosses and desire to return to work, but the others will not allow them to do so.

The Cold Wave as Predicted.

Thousands of People Shivered and Shook Last Night.

Last night reminded thousands of people that overcoats were the appropriate articles for comfort. There is no necessity to suffer the agonies of cold weather while the great sacrifice sale of tailor-made overcoats and suits is in progress. Overcoats worth $30 can be bought for $12. Suits worth the same money at prices that will compel you to buy whether you wish to or not.

Ladies' Winter Skirts.

Grey melon cloth, 90c to $2. Cloth and flannel, $2 to $4.50. Quilted satins and alpaca, $4 to $5. Quilted ladies silks, $5 to $8. Quilted satins, $2 to $3. Silk skirts, $5 to $12. Largest assortments and lowest prices. JOS. HORNE & CO.'S Penn Avenue Stores.

A Notable Week for Weddings.

Not in years has there been so many brilliant weddings together. Truly the brides this week made an exquisite bouquet. On Tuesday evening was Miss Dolly Pitcairn's wedding, and the people said what the Press repeated next evening, that the splendor of the bridal decorations at the Shady-side Church, but at Cairncraze especially, excelled every previous similar event. The following evening the Rees-Scully nuptials were solemnized in the same church. Again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That of Miss Edith Darlington, who was wedded in her ancestral home, the lovely Glencairn, among the loaves in the library of the late William Darlington, and Miss Wattle, who was married to Mr. Abraham Stevenson, in the First English Lutheran Church at 10 o'clock. M. & J. B. McKee, again there was an exquisite treatment of plants and flowers. It is a triumph of floral skill to succeed equally, and yet not exceed the beauty of a decoration of 24 hours earlier. But in this case the first was the forerunner of the other, and both formed an harmonious whole. Last evening two other brilliant weddings were held. That